"Tag, George, you're it"

A DEWEY MEDAL FROM VERMONT

By

WILLIAM S. DEWEY, LM 52

AMONG the many honors that were paid to Admiral George Dewey upon his return to the United States from Manila in the fall of 1899 was the presentation of a jewel-encrusted medal in solid gold by his native State of Vermont. The date was October 12, 1899; the occasion, a heart-warming welcome home to Montpelier, the town of his birth and boyhood. There, on the old State House steps, the Governor of the state pinned upon Dewey's chest that day, in the name of all citizens of Vermont, a medal that, for sheer beauty, must be classed among the finest ever bestowed on any American hero.

The event went unnoticed in the numismatic world of the time. From 1899 to 1922, the existence of this unique decoration remained unrecorded in numismatic annals. Then, in a listing of naval medals of the Spanish-American War (Numismatist, July, 1922, page 320), Dr. Malcolm Storer of Boston included it for the first time. Meanwhile, the medal had been exhibited to the public at the Tiffany pavilion, Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, N. Y. in 1901, and probably elsewhere.

On January 22, 1945, attention was directed to the almost forgotten medal by a letter to the Editor of the Boston Herald from John G. Faxon of Fitchburg, Mass. Faxon was a chief editorial newswriter for the Herald for 25 years. He had covered the Montpelier celebration to Admiral Dewey on October 12, 1899, for his paper. Under the headline "How George Dewey Got His Medal" he wrote as follows:

To the Editor of the Herald:

Reading the interesting and emotional news stories of bestowal of medals of honor and decorations upon our servicemen reminds me of the bestowal of a medal upon Admiral George Dewey by his native state, Vermont, when he returned from Manila in 1899. The Herald sent me over to New York to meet him and accompany his special train and party to Montpelier. The state had commissioned Tiffany to design and have struck a gold medal that was to be presented at the close of a grand demonstration in front of the state capitol at Montpelier.

Not willing to entrust the medal to the mails, Tiffany sent it by special messenger. But he fell victim to the toothsome cooking at the station restaurant at Bellows Falls where the train stopped, and he lingered a few moments too long and the train went off and left him.

At the close of the exercises, Governor Smith had to explain all about the absence of the medal and assured the thousands in the crowd that he would personally present it when it was received some hours later in the day.

Having made an appointment with the Admiral for a special interview at his home, I stood by, so to speak, and was sitting on the capitol steps, some time later, when a breathless man rushed up and asked if the Governor was in his office. I replied that he was. Could he see him? I assured him — when he had said he was the belated messenger — that he certainly could.

William S. Dewey, Ridgewood, N. J., is no stranger to members of the American Numismatic Association, as he has served on various committees, and was Librarian-Curator from 1937 to 1940. He was also a joint-compiler of The Numismatist 50-year index. His collection of Admiral Dewey medals and tokens is probably the best in the country.

So we went within and I rapped at the Governor's private office door and was admitted. I told the executive that this was the missing man. The Governor could not refrain from "saying a few things" which the Tiffany man said were entirely justified. Then he was dismissed.

Then the presentation occurred. The Governor said: "George, stand up." The Admiral did so. Then Gov. Smith pinned the medal upon his breast, drew back an arm's length, laid his fingers upon it, and said: "Tag, George, you're it."

Obviously, I could not report that in my story of the day, but I did say that the Governor, in a few laconic words, which were characteristic of Vermonters, assured the Admiral of the love and pride the people of his native state felt for him.

Thus, I was the only person in the country who witnessed the presentation of this medal. The Admiral and Governor are neither of them living.

This was the only time in my many years on the Herald staff that I ever failed fully to report a complete story of whatsoever occasion I was assigned to.

Clearly I could not have put that on the wire!

But "Now it can be told!"

JOHN G. FAXON

Contemporary reports of the event in local papers and the New York press make no mention of the situation described by Faxon. Admiral Dewey's son, George Goodwin Dewey, was unable to clear up the mystery when questioned by the author, although he stood at his father's side throughout the Montpelier ceremony. Faxon, in a personal letter to the author dated July 25, 1945, reiterated his claim, but offered no further substantiating proof. Until more substantive evidence is produced, it appears that Faxon's story should be given some credence as an interesting anecdote of the occasion.

Montpelier, Vt., was Admiral Dewey's boyhood home. From 1843 to 1851 he had attended the Montpelier District School. John Barrett, writing a biography of the Admiral in 1899, described the town of Dewey's birth as follows:

Montpelier is an ideal town for the birthplace of a great man . . . It is clean, wholesome, prosperous, and attractive. Its residents are thrifty, well educated, and often well-to-do, in the Vermont sense. As the capital of a commonwealth which has produced such a large proportion of successful men . . . it is in no sense disappointing. In short, it is the class of town or city which we would select as the youthful home of Admiral Dewey.

Across the wide, beautiful street on which Dewey was born . . . there stands proudly at the foot of a hill, which could almost be called a mountain, the state capitol. Set off against the towering green of the hill and fronted with terraced steps and a wide grassy slope reaching down to the street, is the massive granite masonry of the building in the form of a Greek Cross, with an impressive portico of the Doric order . . .

Directly opposite the front entrance of this imposing building . . . was the front door of the house in which Dewey was born . . . From his earliest days of receiving impressions, the capitol of the state, with all its dignity, beauty, and associations, was there to develop in his mind a vigorous sense of patriotism and love of government.

It was particularly fitting and appropriate to honor the nation's hero amidst such significant surroundings. The Admiral would be at ease and among old time friends and neighbors. He would be home!

Commenting on the Dewey Day celebration at Montpelier, the New York Sun reported:

The day was an immense success and was of fine Indian summer weather. 50,000 people were there to take it all in. The chief event was a parade of the military and civil organizations in the state. There were 4,000 men in line and 25 bands.

The Admiral rode in an open carriage over the route (with Gov. E. C. Smith and Mayor John Senter) and was seen by everyone. Then he reviewed the parade from the steps of the state house, where some day his statue will stand opposite that of Ethan Allen. Gov. Smith presented and pinned on his coat the gold and jewelled medal that the state had struck for him.

The Annual Encyclopedia for 1899 (page 848, subject: "Vermont-Holidays") gives the following account of the occasion:

October 12th was observed as Dewey Day. Public spirited citizens guaranteed the necessary funds for the arrangements, and special trains were run on all railroads. It was estimated that 40,000 strangers were in Montpelier that day. At the re-tion for a stroll. He met and greeted his old time family friend, Senator Redfield Proctor. Prior to the opening of hostilities with Spain, the Senator had been instrumental in obtaining command of the Asiatic viewing stand the Governor presented the Admiral with a gold medal.

It is reported that Dewey slipped unobserved from his railway car early on the morning of the celebra-

Squadron for Dewey over the choice of the Secretary of War, a slightly senior officer. Dewey never forgot the much needed assist. Their exchange of greetings on this occasion was an exuberant one, and an auspicious start to a memorable day.

The parade held in Dewey's honor started at one o'clock in the afternoon. A corps of cadets from Norwich University acted as the Admiral's escort. (He had attended Norwich for two years before entering the Naval Academy.) Dewey rode in a carriage at the head of the procession with the Governor and the Mayor of Montpelier. On traversing the route, he took position on the reviewing stand in front of the steps of the capitol building.

There, Governor Smith presented to Dewey the medal which the people of Vermont had caused to be struck for him. Whether the actual medal, or a substitute, or none at all was used (as suggested by Faxon's story) seems academic at this time.

The Vermont medal is a striking example of the best medallistic art work of the late nineteenth century. It was executed by Tiffany & Company of New York, who were also responsible for striking the Congressional Manila Bay medal. Comparison of the portrait bust of the Admiral on the Vermont medal with the Congressional medal reveals identity of detail, showing the two to have been taken from the same original. The size of the portrait on the Vermont medal is, however, somewhat reduced. In no other respect are the two medals alike or comparable, the Vermont piece being more in the nature of a decoration than an austere battle medal.

The central motif of the medal proper shows a profile bust of Dewey in an oval bordered with rope. An enameled shield of the State of Vermont rests at the base of the bust. Behind are mounted in order, crossed American and Admiral's flags enameled, an anchor, a large five-pointed star, and finally a laurel wreath whose berries are cut diamonds. The flag pole tips also terminate in diamonds. On a ribbon entwined in the lower star points and anchor is the inscription

FREEDOM / VERMONT / AND
UNITY. The name of Dewey's Flagship Olympia appears on the crossbar of the anchor. All lettering is in navy blue.

Across the widest tips of the star the medal measures 57 millimeters, and from bottom of anchor to top tip of star a similar measurement applies. The oval medallion of Dewey's bust measures about 29 millimeters across and approximately 37 high.

The reverse of the medal bears only the manufacturer's name, TIF-FANY. There is no edge inscription.

The medal suspends from a navy blue ribbon attached to an ornate bar pin inscribed WELCOME HOME in blue letters within a rectangular panel bordered with rope. The bar pin is surmounted by a spread eagle and diamond studded crown above.

The portrait bust of Dewey was designed by Daniel Chester French as a part of the Congressional Manila Bay medal. The designer of the Vermont medal in its completed form is not known.

All parts of the Vermont Dewey medal are of solid gold. There are 18 diamonds to embellish the design. Altogether, it is one of the most attractive and artistic pieces ever given to a military hero in this country.

When located in 1945, the medal was on loan to the Chicago Historical Society through the courtesy of the Admiral's son, George Goodwin Dewey. An excellent photograph of the medal was supplied by the Society for reproduction with this paper.

Some years ago the writer was fortunate to obtain from the estate of a former employee of Tiffany's a trial piece in bronze showing the Daniel Chester French bust of Admiral Dewey. It had been turned out on a reduction lathe. Measurements correspond precisely with those of the bust on the Vermont medal. It is believed that the piece was executed in connection with the preparation of the Vermont medal.

Two Norwegian artists are among recipients of the British Harriet Cohen International Music Prizes. The gold medal for singing went to Aase Nordmo Lovberg. Per Dreier received the Arnold Bax medal for conducting modern music.

"Coins bearing the Dioscuri became charms and were carried by sailors"

DIOSCURI ON ANCIENT COINS

By

RAYMOND J. WALKER, A.N.A. No. 9024

IN CATALOGS of ancient coins of Rome, Tarentum and Rhegium, the collector often sees such notations as "Dioscuri, Dioskuri," etc., as being part of the design. The Dioscuri are better known to students of astrology; they are the Gemini or Twins of the zodiac. In ancient times they were at first heroes and then gods and were so-called because they were the sons of Zeus, or as one authority puts it, "the lads of Zeus." They splendor on the Ides of Quintilis, the 15th of July, the day on which they were believed to have assisted the Romans against the Latins in the battle of Lake Regillus. For this assistance a temple to Dioscuri was erected at Rome, near the Forum, 12 years after the battle, which occurred in 496 B.C. Each year at their festival the Equites, horsemen or knights, who made the heavenly twins their patrons, went in magnificent procession, crowned with olive held a status similar to that of patron saints in early Christian times; Castor was the horse tamer and Polydeuces, better known now as Pollux, was the master of the art of boxing.

The Spartans paid these heroes special honors and their festival at Sparta was celebrated with sacrifices, rejoicing and drinking, which are described by Pausanias. There was also a festival in their honor at Cyrene. In Athens this festival was known as the Anakeia and the twins were known as the Anakes. They were honored throughout Greece especially in the Doric and Achaean states where many temples were dedicated to them.

At Rome the festival of the Dioscuri was celebrated with great chaplets and wearing their state dress, the trabea, starting from the temple of Mars, outside the city, then through the main streets, crossing the forum, and then passed the temple of the Dioscuri.

The Equites were originally a division of the Roman army. At the beginning of the kingly period they were called Celares and their number was limited to 300, chosen in equal numbers from the three tribes — the Ramnes, Tities and Luceres. Later the number increased to 1600 and finally to 1800, divided into centuries or companies of 100. In the later times they developed into a sort of political clique and a military order that might be compared to the orders of knighthood of the Middle Ages.

Raymond J. Walker, New London, Conn. has written earlier articles on ancient coins for The Numismatist. This one was presented as an A.N.A. convention paper in 1955.

All persons of birth and wealth aspired to membership in the Equites who had certain rights or privileges based on fairness from which code we have our word "equity" but the root lies in "equine" meaning horse. Even in our slang, in the present automotive age, we still talk of sharp trading as "horse trading," and some wag insists that when we call a town unique it means "uni" (one) and "equi" (horse). The Equites, however, were not unique in that sense for each knight had two horses, one of his own and another furnished by the state. Each knight kept a groom, and an allowance was given to feed the horse given by the state.

When the pay system was established for the army, the Equites received three times the pay granted to the other troops, and when there was booty or loot to be awarded after a victory the share of the Equites was three times that of the foot soldier. When an Eques was dismissed, or a candidate for that office was rejected, the brush-off came in the words: "Sell your horse" (vende equum). This phrase is related to a more modern one "Peddle your papers," said to have originated with the value placed on an honorable discharge from military service which could be sold at a good price by someone needing bolstering of his character. A representation of the Equites ceremony of Transvectio can be seen on the Roman consular coin of P. Crassus, a denarius of the Licinia family. On the obverse is the head of Venus, on the reverse is the legend P. CRASSUS M.F. and an eques dismounted leads his horse. P. Crassus was the son of Marcus Crassus, both of whom were killed in a war with Parthia.

The Dioscuri in Homer are represented as the sons of Leda and Tyndareus, King of Sparta. They were sometimes called the Tyndaridae; and the poet tells us that they died in the interval between the rape of Helen and the Trojan war, and that they were buried in Lacadaemon in Sparta. But even after earthly death they still lived in the heavens; honored by Zeus, they lived on alternate days taking turns at rebirth and death. In the later legends only Pollux is considered the son of Zeus. They were in the expedition to Attica to rescue their sister Helen who had been carried off by Theseus. They had another sister, Clytemnestra. Their mother was Leda, whose love Zeus had won under the form of a swan. In some versions Leda is represented as having brought forth two eggs, from one of which Castor and Pollux were born, from the other Helen. In other accounts Tyndareus was the father of Castor and Clytemnestra while Zeus was the father of Pollux and Helen.

The Dioscuri went with Jason and the Argonauts in search of the Golden Fleece. Castor, the mortal twin, fell in a battle with Idas and Lynceus, the sons of Aphareus, their paternal uncle. This fight arose according to one version in what in Irish folklore would be called a cattle raid; in another version they had carried off Phoebe and Hilairia, daughters of another uncle, who were betrothed to the sons of Aphareus. On the death of Castor, Polydeuces or Pollux, the immortal one prayed to Zeus to let him die, too. Then they came to live on alternate days. However, another version makes them become the constellation Gemini, while another makes them the morning and evening stars.

To the unpoetic these old heroic twins might be seen as horse thieves or cattle rustlers, comparable to the James boys, the Younger brothers, etc., of the West of less than a century ago. However, the plot catalog of all poetry, romance and even history was written or rather the plots conceived in the misty age of pre-history. The Dioscuri are but another form of the twin deities found in the old Aryan religions brought into Greece when the Indo-Europeans forced the Pelasgi to move on or absorbed them. The twins typify light and dark, day and night, dawn and dusk, winter and summer, and even heaven and earth. If we give them names we might cite Indra and Agni; the twin horsemen of the Asvins or Vritihana, destroyers of Vrita. The two Dawns, Day and Night, are born, it is said, when the Asvins yoke or hitch their horses to their car (hitch their wagon [chariot] to a star [the Sun]). The twins stand in the same relationship to the Greek Helen as do the Asvins to Ushas. They were the conquerors of darkness, the lords of light, ever youthful, swift of flight and possessed of profound wisdom. Like Proteus and Themis they could change their shape at will. In the Norse tale of Dapplegrim we have the Asvins in their original form as horses. In this tale the hero has a wonderful steed comparable to the Greek Pegasus, and the horse tells the hero his only match can be found in Hell or Hades where he has a twin. The twins are also the Yamen, Yama and Yima; the Ying and Yang of the Chinese; Romulus and Remus, and all the famous twins, male or female, in legend and history.

The ancient symbol of the twins at Lacedaemon was two parallel bars joined by cross-pieces which the Spartans took with them to war. Their horses were Xanthus and Cyllaros, and it was from the latter that the Celeres, the old name of the Equites, had its origin. Xanthus was also the name of the chief city of ancient Lycia. It is now Gunick. It stood on the west bank of the river Xanthus. Cyllaros was the horse of Castor, and was also the name of a handsome centaur who was killed at the wedding feast of Pirithius.

The natural fire phenomenon, static electricity, seen on the masts of ships at sea which is known to sailors as St. Elmo's fire, corpus santo, or "Corbie's Aunt" was known to the ancients as the fires of Castor and Pollux and identified with their sister Helen as Helen's fire which in time became St. Helen's fire and so on to St. Elmo. This fireball also seems to have tied the Dioscuri in with the Cabeiri, and the mystic rites of the Pelasgic gods, to whom the Romans traced their Penates. The Pelasgi were the earliest (pre-historic) inhabitants of Greece. They were believed to be non-Aryan and were probably related to the Etruscans who inhabited Italy in very early times but some early writers class the Pelasgi as the Indo-Europeans in Greece before their separation into Greeks and Italians. Herodotus identifies them with the Tyrrheni who settled in Italy. Pelasgus was the mythical ancestor of this race.

The island of Samothrace was the shrine of the rites connected with the Cabeiri, and their mysteries no doubt were brought from Asia by some Semitic race who gave the Phoenicians, and in turn Carthage, their Kabirim. The Kabirim were great gods and there seems to be a maritime or sea relationship between the horsemen and Poseidon or Neptune who is often found appearing as a horse or with horse symbols. It is possible that the cattle thieves driven from their lands took to the seas as pirates and changed their horse-god into a sea deity. The coins of Carthage have a flying horse which resembles Pegasus. The old fireball seen at sea in the earliest or Pelasgic times was called the fire of the Cabeiri and lighted on the heads of Castor and Pollux during the adventure of the Golden Fleece. It was during the sign of Gemini that the initiations at Samothrace began and the great ceremony was held in August, which is said to be a lucky month for those born under the sign of Gemini (May 20-June 20).

The characteristic emblem of the Dioscuri is an oval helmet crowned with a star that seems unattached like the roving fireball. The fireball was considered a sign that the storm would abate and all who were so saved by the holy fire were bound to sacrifice a white lamb to their protectors. Coins bearing the Dioscuri became charms and were carried by sailors. The rites of hospitality were also under the protection of the twins.

On the coins of Tarentum (Taranto) we find on the obverse of a didrachm of the period 281-272 B.C. the figure of a boy riding on a prancing horse who may be one of the Dioscuri for in a later period 272-235 B.C. the coins of that city have the Dioscuri riding on cantering horses. Tarentum was in ancient Calabria (the toe of the boot). On a bronze coin of Rhegium of the period 203-98 B.C. we find the heads of the Dioscuri facing right.

On that type of coinage known as family denarii, those of the An-testia, have the head of Roma on the obverse with the Dioscuri on horseback on the reverse. These are the oldest Roman silver coins first struck in 269 B.C. The names of the twins were used as an expletive or an oath by many Romans which was equivalent to saying "by the Dioscuri" or "by Castor and Pollux." The name of Castor could only be invoked by women for men had caused his death. The reverse of the denarius of the Fontela family has a winged boy on a goat, with the caps of the Dioscuri above.

There are no doubt coins of other ancient cities that have the Dioscuri and their stars or symbols and any catalog of a sale of ancient coins should turn up a few specimens of these ancient lucky pieces that were buried with men to pay their toll across the river Styx. No doubt many a poor sailor died at sea with the charm in his hand or in his mouth and so many coins of the Dioscuri type no doubt lie at the bottom of the Mediterranean Sea.

COMMENTS ON "MOTTO" DOLLAR BILL

Gordon Canfield, a congressman from New Jersey said recently, "I was privileged, along with a number of House and Senate members early last November, to go to the NATO Parliamentary Conference in Paris, which was a prelude to the high summit talks. When I left Capitol Hill I got from the Sergeant at Arms some of the new dollar bills that were being issued. I was so pleased to note that they had the words IN GOD WE TRUST. Believe you me, it was a thrill to see the way they were received overseas; in France, England, Germany. I heard men and women in the stores, waiters and others, say, 'Isn't this wonderful? Let us hope our countries and all the countries of the free world adopt this slogan someday.' I believe it is true that the United States of America is the only nation on the face of the earth that does have that expression appearing on some of its coins and a portion of its paper currency. I think it is a wonderful thing."

Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest also commented on the new motto, saying "We have had very fine and favorable comment on that legend, both in letters from people and in meeting with people about the country. . . . Many people are very appreciative of the fact that this motto has long been engraved on our coins, but they are happy to have it on our currency now."

The Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Henry J. Holtzclaw, said that "We were working against a deadline when these first presses (dry process) came in which accounts for the high spoilage that we had on such a large volume of our work. It was announced that the first date of issuance of $1.00 silver certificates bearing the motto IN GOD WE TRUST would be October 1. We were quite anxious to have on hand a sufficient quantity for a token nationwide distribution. Actually we had over 40 million notes available on the first of October, starting from scratch in July." — (Reprinted from the CSNS Sentinel, April, 1958.)

Reports of African Currency Boards — The amount of currency issued in the area of the West African Currency Board (Nigeria, Ghana, Sierra Leone, Gambia) during the year ended June 30, 1957, totaled £27.9 million, against redemptions through payments in London totaling £20.5 million. Notes and coin in circulation showed a net increase of £7.5 million, compared with an increase of £5.8 million in the previous year. The Board has continued the policy of increasing the liquidity of its portfolio because "in addition to the uncertainties of the security markets the Board must prepare for the withdrawal and redemption of the Board's currency in Ghana next year (i.e., in 1958), followed no doubt in a year or so by the withdrawal of the Board's currency in Nigeria, when those countries issue their own currency." — International Financial News Survey, March 14, 1958.

THE PRESERVATION OF COINS

By

DR. F. STEVENS EPPS, A.N.A. No. 7679

Reprinted from the CSNS Sentinel, April, 1958 by permission

This short essay is not to be construed with the wornout subject of how to clean coins. Rather it tells how to take a brilliant uncirculated or proof coin and keep it that way.

The writer, for 10 years, has been a student of chemistry as it pertains to metals, and coins are metals. All metals are subject to oxidation unless they are airtight (sealed) in an inert covering. Some metals will oxidize more quickly than others. For example: copper oxidizes more quickly than nickel, and nickel more readily than silver. These three basic metals, or combinations thereof, make up the content of most of our coinage today. Now just what does the word "inert" mean? It means a substance which is not affected by oxygen, or which contains no oxygen. There are very few liquids or solids that are inert, so few that we can name them readily. In the liquids, there are benzene and ether; in the solids, paper that contains no sulphur and in the plastics ethylcellulose, polystyrene and polyethylene. Even plexiglas is questionable because it contains polymethacrylic acid. Any chemical that attacks tarnish on a coin will later attack the metal itself. Butyrate is one of the most volatile plastics and acetate is not much better. They are commonly esterified together and dangerous for the protection of a mint coin.

If collectors are willing to learn and observe the rudiments of chemistry, and protect their mint and proof coins in the proper manner each year as they receive them, there would be no need for future worry about restoring them to their mint condition. But, the collector says, this is all very good advice, but what am I to do? Since all paper contains sulphur, take those uncirculated coins out of the bank wrapper as it has about 5% sulphur content. Take your proof coins out of the cellophane mint sealed package because all cellophane contains nitrate. The new mint sealed proof package does not contain the percentage of nitrate that the usual run of cellophane coin envelopes do, very true, but it still contains some nitrate.

Antitarnish tissue is supposed to be "sulphur-free," but I have tested many sheets of various manufacture and still found sulphur therein. If you use an antitarnish tissue just be sure it tests out "sulphur-free" and then you are safe. I know of at least one kind that does test out. In the plastics stay with polystyrene, polyethylene or ethylcellulose, and again you are safe.

Collectors have written me and said, "I have done these very things and still ruined some uncirculated coins." This is a true statement, so what happened? Some foreign element was on the coin when it was covered with the inert covering. An example of this would be many of the rolls of uncirculated nickel five cent pieces. Automatic counting and rolling machines used by banks are lubricated by a grease that highly contaminates the metal of the coin. Each coin whether copper, nickel or silver must be carefully inspected, or should be, before you place it in an inert covering of your choice. If this grease is removed within 30 to 60 days from the time of minting, or before it "sets" on the metal, you are safe. Use a clean pocket handkerchief, and then if you are still not sure, immerse the coin in medical benzene and buff it with lamb's wool, then place it in your anti-tarnish tissue or any of the three mentioned plastics, and you can forget it for your lifetime. It will stay brilliant.

A.N.A. CONVENTION, AUGUST 13 TO 16

WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES COMMITTEE

Hello, girls of all ages! Here's a warm greeting to you who are planning right now to attend the fabulous fiesta de dinero, A.N.A.'s 67th annual convention, in Los Angeles.

Come on, ladies, from everywhere,
You'll love this wonder city;
Get your clothes, for heaven knows,
You'll want to look real pretty!
You're going to have a marvelous time
With excitement every minute
So plan right now by saying "Wow!
I'm going to be there in it!"

Take one of your biggest calendars right now, dear lady, and mark in big red letters the four-day period from August 13 to and including August 16. This is the time Los Angeles goes all out to entertain every one of the visiting ladies from all over the United States. We told you before, in The Numismatist, just what wonderful things had been planned for you — every day and every hour . . . things to see you had always dreamed of . . . the nation's finest in entertainment for your amusement and pleasure.

So DO come — bring the family. We'll even keep your teen-agers busy, and see that the small fry are beautifully cared for.

MRS. ESTHER G. SPENCE
Women's Activities Chairman

PATRONS

The 1958 Los Angeles convention is going to be the greatest ever held. No doubt about it. More collectors than ever before are going to attend this brilliant fiesta.

Here is your opportunity to become a patron at this important gathering. Your contribution of $5.00 or more will place your name, along with your friends, in the convention program. Be an active, participating numismatist! Get YOUR name in this big program. Please make checks payable to the 1958 A.N.A. Convention Committee and mail to Ben W. Williams, Patron Listing Chairman, 5619 N. Coldbrook Ave., Lakewood, Calif.

ABOUT HOTEL RATES

So you may plan your expenses during this A.N.A. convention, the following rate card is given for your guidance. The new Hotel Statler in Los Angeles is in the heart of downtown Los Angeles, within easy taxi or driving distance of all points. There is a radio and TV in every room at no extra charge. Perfect air conditioning of the hotel assures you of comfortable temperatures always. Points of interest and the entertainment world beckon you.

Reservations should be addressed to Front Office Manager, Hotel Statler, Los Angeles 17, Calif. Unless the hotel is otherwise advised, reservations will be held only until 6:00 p.m. of day of arrival. Please state when you will arrive and also the expected date of departure. Room rates are as follows:

ATTENTION, EXHIBITORS

All prospective exhibitors are urged to reserve space immediately by writing to the Exhibits Committee Chairman, William H. Spence, 11807 S. Atkinson Ave., Inglewood 4, Calif. A copy of the application blank with rules for exhibitors will be mailed to you at once. Act today! There's no time to lose!

FIESTA HIGHLIGHTS

Abe Kosoff, auctioneer, announces that the 1958 convention auction will be one of the outstanding sales held in many years. Anyone interested in any phase of the auction may write to Kosoff at P. O. Box 456, Encino, Calif.

Herbert M. Bergen, Banquet Chairman, has arranged an outstanding program for the banquet. Details are a secret, but with Herb's program and the Hotel Statler cuisine the success of the banquet is assured.

George Bennett, Special Events Chairman, advises that many local clubs are sponsoring activities, assuring all of our visitors of a memorable time.

Paul O. Martin, Registration Chairman, is preparing to take care of 1500 visitors.

C. A. (Slim) Dunbar, Bourse Chairman, reports that as of March 31 over 80% of the bourse was reserved. Maybe, just maybe, there will be a few spaces left by the time this goes to press.

W. R. (Bill) Fanning, Entertainment Chairman, has planned entertainment for all and promises that visitors will have the opportunity to go places and do the things for which Los Angeles is famous.

TIPS FOR CONVENTION EXHIBITORS

By

WALTER BREEN, A.N.A. No. 12421

ONE of the most important features of any numismatic convention, regional or national, and a feature of more educational value than dozens of post-banquet speeches, is the members' displays. The time and trouble one takes in preparing and assembling a convention exhibit (whether in competition or out of it) characterizes the numismatist in contrast to the mere collector. Someone once wrote "It's not how many coins you put into your case that makes the exhibit, it's how few with how much explanation." What I would like to do here is to approach this subject, not from the point of view of a competitive exhibitor nor yet that of a judge, but from that of a person looking at the displays, with perhaps limited knowledge of the exhibitors' specialties, in the hope that future A.N.A. and regional conventions may be marked by more and better-planned exhibits.

Perhaps we can begin to describe a really good exhibit by showing first of all what it is not. It is not a mere vulgar display of wealth — 80 or 90 large gold pieces thrown together in no particular order and shown primarily to overwhelm by their bullion value — nor is it a show window of rarities with the prices conveniently visible on the holders — nor yet a miscellaneous hodgepodge of modern proof sets, no matter how elaborately set up. I mention these categories precisely because displays of these kinds have won prizes, rather to the disappointment of exhibitors who had more unusual material.

On the contrary, a good exhibit should represent hours of work in selecting items not seen advertised in quantity in every coin periodical, items not seen every day in dealers' stocks, items (in short) worth going to a convention to see. They should, both by their arrangement in the cases, by their general presentation, and by their labels, tell a story worth hearing. I recall some outstanding examples of this kind at the Chicago A.N.A. convention; for instance, one was the prize-winning Bartholow exhibit of United States coins arranged by designers and engravers, another was the anonymous display entitled "Where Did You Get That Hat?" illustrating notes side by side with the earlier notes whose vignettes the engravers copied. At the St. Louis CSNS convention, Eric Newman's noncompetitive exhibit was likewise worth the trip from New York — some of the unique and semi-unique early American colonial coins there shown had not been seen in public for many decades; their stories were well told, and they were set up in such a way that both sides of the coins and the lettered edges were plainly readable.

Most would-be exhibitors are (or should become) familiar with the A.N.A. point-value criteria for awarding prizes, so I won't go into them here. What follows goes beyond that. In preparing his assembly, the exhibitor ought always to remember that both the judges and the viewing public appreciate unusual and aesthetically pleasing arrangements of material together with legible explanatory notes. The eye becomes fatigued with crowded rows and columns of unlabeled or scantily labeled coins of series unfamiliar or commonplace. Handwritten material is frequently almost unreadable by viewers who aren't used to the exhibitor's script — or when the lighting is none too adequate, a frequent complaint. Elite typewritten work is not too good, particularly if it is single spaced. Material clipped or copied from the Guide Book is not worth the effort; be original! IBM typewritten, or out-size ($\frac{1}{4}$ inch or more) lettering, or the like, will be far better for display purposes than is ordinary typing. White on black background is particularly eye-catching. Different backgrounds for gold, silver and bronze coins would help, too. Paper money, whether in cases or on easels, becomes dull if merely exhibited with Friedberg numbers and no explanations. Give it some historical dressing up. One of the best such displays I have seen showed original vignettes and proofs side by side with the finished notes.

If you must exhibit commemoratives, find some "gimmick" to induce the viewer to stay more than a few seconds at your case. One particularly effective device of this kind was an enlarged map; others might include old engravings of the people and scenes depicted or memorialized. Proof sets, regardless of arrangement or holders used, have a certain sameness about them; the only exhibitors who have broken through this barrier to interest have been Harry Boosel and John Pittman, the former with his trial pieces in other metals, the latter with his pre-1858 coins.

Colonial coppers, even in choice condition, would greatly benefit from special lighting. I recall one particularly impressive display whose owner had the good sense to attach a universal-joint lamp to the case so that the viewer could illuminate each coin in turn; this idea deserves wider circulation.

Exhibits dressed up with appropriate photographic enlargements, etchings, drawings, related non-numismatic articles, etc., are also attention-getting. A display of Washington medals, for instance, might include the old engraved portraits copied by the designers of the medals, as in the Paul Magriel exhibit some years back. Obsolete paper money might be accompanied with one of those banknote engraving firms' specimen sheets illustrating the various vignettes; Confederate currency, with old portraits (and biographical sketches) of the Southern statesmen whose faces were shown on the notes. Pioneer gold might well be shown beside old San Francisco directories which included advertisements by the firms who made the coins.

Exhibits might be grouped around a single theme. Women's hair-dos have already been overworked, but there are so many other themes: armor, weapons, architecture, children, maps, musical instruments, particular kinds of animals (F. W. Doughty, if memory serves, had an immense collection of coins and medals depicting elephants), automobiles, coin presses, etc., as shown on coins, medals and paper money of various times and places. Examples could be multiplied almost without number. And material of this kind makes better copy for newspaper reporters covering the conventions — always a desirable thing.

Lastly, a few warnings. In case a few would-be exhibitors have not heard, it is dangerous to exhibit gold certificates, gold coins after 1933, U. S. counterfeits (including platinum half eagles!), or any of the 400 still outstanding $10,000 notes from the material discarded at the Post Office fire in Washington some years back. This is in addition to the two "unwritten laws" — exhibits are not offers to sell, and coins must be one's own, not borrowed from other collectors unless written acknowledgement is made in the exhibition.

It's not too early even now to plan your A.N.A. exhibits. The more time and care spent in preparation, the better your chance of winning a prize.

"There are other Copper Pieces, which have passed for Halfpence and Farthings in Ireland; but for what Purpose they were coin'd, and by whom, is uncertain . . .

The smaller Pieces have St. Patrick, with a double Cross in his Left-hand, a Church behind him, holding out his Right-hand, and driving away from the Church a Parcel of venomous Creatures, no Doubt, meaning thereby the different Sects of Protestants." An Historical Account of English money, from the Conquest, to the Present Time by Stephen Martin-Leake, Esq., London 1745.

DR. JOHN PARSONS, PRIVATE COINER

By

DR. ROY J. POPKIN, A.N.A. No. 22719

Reprinted from The New England Journal of Medicine, September 5, 1957
by special permission

DR. John Parsons was just another practitioner of medicine in pre-Civil War days in Illinois. For the first half century of his life, he was little known outside his own community. He was born in Indiana in 1806. The Parsons family was a large and important group in the state, with many prominent educators among them. Since formal medical education was lacking in early Indiana, John Parsons obtained his medical training under the preceptorship system. It is known that he practiced medicine in Quincy, Ill., for over a decade before 1859. Owing to poor health, he was forced to give up his practice and move to a more favorable climate.

Dr. Parsons's history and existence would undoubtedly have been as insignificant and fleeting as a wave upon the ocean if he had not taken part in an important phase of American history known to the numismatic fraternity as the period of territorial or private mintage of gold coinage. This period, from 1830 to 1861, was characterized by individual ingenuity and enterprise. By a curious loophole in the United States coinage laws, private individuals or firms were permitted to issue gold coins of their own design and denomination, provided they did not resemble official coins too closely. This right was specifically denied to state or local governmental agencies. Gold coins were struck privately in various gold-producing sections of the country — first in Georgia and later in North Carolina, California, Utah, Oregon and Colorado. Private mintage was profitable. About 20 per cent of the total value of the gold minted was retained by the owner of the mint for his services. These coins circulated freely, and private mintage came to fill an important gap in the early economic life of the nation.

Dr. Parsons arrived in the booming Pikes Peak gold mining district of Colorado in the summer of 1859. It is not known where he received his training in metallurgy, but he appeared to have a good knowledge of assaying, smelting and minting of gold. He went into business almost immediately and organized a firm known as John Parsons and Company. His early operations consisted of assaying and manufacturing $20 gold ingots. These ingots, when available to the numismatist today, are worth over $5,000.

The Weekly News of Denver, dated July 3, 1861, stated, "Parsons and Co., of Hamilton, are making preparations for a gold coinage. The issue will be in quarter and half eagles of handsome and original design." Dr. Parsons designed the coins himself. The quarter eagle or $2.50 gold piece had, on the obverse, a picture of a gold quartz stamping mill with J. PARSON & CO. above and the word ORO below. On the reverse was an eagle encircled by PIKES PEAK GOLD and a "2½ D" below. The half eagle, or $5 piece, was similar in design except that the name was J. N. Parson & Co., and the denomination FIVE D. The omission of the S. in Dr. Parsons's name was apparently an error on the part of the engraver. The coins were not dated. The $2.50 gold piece today is worth over $5,000. While he owned and operated that mint, Dr. Parsons practiced medicine. However, because his health continued to be poor, and the population sparse, he turned his hand to other pursuits.

He soon became a successful and well known dairyman. However, according to early newspaper accounts, "ill health and bad luck dogged him." Many references occurred in early Colorado newspapers concerning his mining, farming and prospecting activities. He organized and headed a well known expedition known as the Parsons Expedition to determine the mineral and agricultural resources of the Elk Mountain country. In this expedition he was listed as botanist and general manager. Seeking new frontiers and opportunities, he moved to Utah, where he died in 1881.

The following were of considerable help in providing information concerning Dr. Parsons: the William Henry Smith Memorial Library of the Indiana Historical Society; Office of the Surgeon General, Department of the Army, Washington, D.C.; Colorado State Medical Society; Indiana University Medical Center; Illinois State Library; the State Historical Society of Colorado; the Society of Indiana Pioneers; and the Western History Department of the Public Library, Denver, Colorado.

NATIONAL COIN WEEK

It is now time to submit entries and reports of activities in celebration of National Coin Week. Before compiling the reports to accompany the entry be sure to read the instructions carefully and see that you have included all activities that might have some point value. Attention is directed to the point value awarded for the character of the report. The better the entry is organized and submitted the easier it is for the judging committee. The character of the report gives you additional points.

Please attach names of all participants to your entry blank along with all other activities such as newspaper clippings, photos, radio and television scripts, etc. Photographs should be glossy prints as some of the winners will be selected for publication in The Numismatist. Please do not include photos of United States currency as the latter cannot be reproduced.

Every club is requested to enter a report. Also any individual who made an independent exhibit.

Mail all entries to Ray M. Janda, 9512 Wyandotte, Kansas City 2, Mo. The judging committee is the Heart of America Numismatic Association of Kansas City, Mo. The deadline for mailing has been set for a midnight postmark, May 24, 1958. Any entries postmarked after this date cannot be considered. Your entries will be returned by marking this on your entry blank.

The logical question is what were these tokens used for? White Bros. and Co. were manufacturers of leather shoes and they apparently placed one of these tokens in each shoe sold. The tokens were apparently attached to a tag and these attached to the shoes. Very few tags have been seen. In all the hundreds of tokens examined only two tags have come to light. The text of the tags leads us to believe that Whites' specialty was colored leathers.

Dr. Wright in The Numismatist of December, 1899, lists two pieces, the familiar one as 1235 but as 1234 he lists one never seen by the writers.

Notes & Queries

Note of Appreciation

Dear Mr. Bradfield:

I wish to express my heartfelt thanks for the publication of my article on the proclamation medals of Cuba. The presentation was really exceptionally good and I have received a considerable correspondence in commendation. Two pieces in the numismatic collection of Yale University have been correctly classified by the information afforded in the article.

Possibly as a coincidence, an exhibition of Cuban medals including proclamation pieces is to be opened at the National Museum. I will have the pleasure of sending you a note on the event when I view the collection.

I must also congratulate you on the continued excellence of The Numismatist.

Can You Identify It?

Dear Mr. Bradfield:

Can any Numismatist reader identify the medal pictured here? It measures 29 mm., including the copper frame and appears to be silvered.

Boy Scouts Collecting Coins Increase

Dear Mr. Bradfield:

A report has come in from the Boy Scouts stating that the number of boys who earned the Coin Collecting Merit Badge in 1957 was 5,584. This brings the total since the booklet was revised in 1948 to 25,845. The number of the latter sold in 1957 was 11,212, bringing the total to date to 59,193.

It is always gratifying to me as one of the authors of the booklet to learn each year that the number of pamphlets sold is substantially in excess of the number of merit badges earned. I like to think this is because a great many boys have the long range objective of becoming numismatists rather than merely acquiring Coin Collecting Merit Badges.

Notice has just been received that the 1958 printing of the Boy Scout Coin Collecting booklet is now off the press with new improvements which will prove rewarding to any one who would like to use it in connection with building up interest among junior members.

Cederberg, the bill asks for 25,000 coins of appropriate design bearing the likeness of the Lumbermen's Memorial Monument in the Huron National Forest.

New Coin Firm In La Grange, Ill.

A merger of the Giant Coin Company and the La Grange Coin Company, has been announced by Paul Krumhaus, president of the latter company. The firm name will be the La Grange Coin Company which will sell only U. S. coins. A new price list is available for 3¢ postage; address the company at 824 S. Catherine St., La Grange, Ill.

Unhappy Transaction

A coin collector recently related his experience with a man who requested some coins on approval, held them for nearly a year despite numerous requests for settlement and finally offered a third of the stipulated price. When the latter was rejected and return of the coins again demanded, only part of them were returned to the owner. Fortunately activities of this kind are not common in our hobby but do point up the fact that the collector should learn something about the other fellow before sending him coins.

Charlton on TV

Interest in coin collecting has increased in intensity in Toronto, Ontario, to such an extent that J. E. Charlton (at right) was invited to be

Value Received

Dear Mr. Bradfield:

As your records will indicate I applied for membership in A.N.A. in March of this year and yesterday I received my copy of The Numismatist for April. I can safely say that I have been repaid by this issue alone as for years I have been attempting to identify a coin in my collection and have not been successful as I have no library upon which to call. However, in the April issue on page 427 ("Strange Money of the World") I find my anonymous coin in the first paragraph entitled "The Cartwheels." As I say, I have had this coin for many years but could find no one who could identify it. Naturally, I knew it was English but knew nothing of its history.

The article failed to state the denomination of the coin. Can you tell me this? Also has the coin any value? Possibly it would be of value to someone attempting to complete a collection.

Also to justify my membership in A.N.A. was the article by H. F. Bowker on "Customs Gold Unit Notes." I have two of the 50 CGU violet notes in my collection.

— ALFRED K. BRIZZARD

Editor's Note: The "cartwheel" shown is a coin of two pence denomination and is very common in fair condition. In extra fine condition, its valuation would probably be about $3.50.

Chain Letter Scheme Stopped

Some American Numismatic Association members whose names have appeared recently in the new member section of The Numismatist have received chain letters requesting that they send certain coins to the top name of several listed in the letter. These letters have implied sanction by the American Numismatic Association but this is entirely false. The Association neither supplies a mailing list for nor condones such schemes. As most people know such letters are refused mail privileges and are banned by the postal service.

Widow's Mite

Dear Mr. Smyser:

I read your article in the March issue of The Numismatist. Since you have mentioned my name in two footnotes, I feel that I must try to clarify some points regarding the subject of your article.

As far as my theory is concerned we have to keep two things apart: The history of the Jewish coins with the name of "King Alexander," and the identification of the "widow's mite." It was not I that suggested the "widow's mite" might have been an Alexander coin. This suggestion originated with A. R. S. Kennedy and the Rev. E. Rogers. My theory, however, grew independently from the "widow's mite" problem, and I think that I made this quite clear in my article of April, 1955.

I very much appreciate your comment that my theory deserves further thought and research. I can only welcome any and every new discovery regarding this matter, regardless of whether it proves or disproves my theory. But in this case you are brushing aside my theory without producing anything new, since A. R. S. Kennedy over 50 years ago mentioned the possibility that a minute bronze of the "Herodian princes" could have been the "widow's mite." This is also mentioned in my article of April, 1955. Because of this situation I am of the opinion that your article is not doing justice to the problem of the "widow's mite." When I explain to you the following you will then understand what I have in mind.

We gather from your article that during the period of Roman procurators, there was a need for the very small copper coins (mites). However, the procurators minted the larger size coins only. Therefore, the people used "mites" that were in circulation at least 30 years and possibly longer. You give preference in your choice of the "widow's mite," as to the youngest of the Herodian mites, because a 30-year-old coin has a better chance of survival than a 40-year-old one. This might be correct, but let us think of what happened in the remaining time of the procuratorial period up to about 66 A.D. In other words, in a period of over 30 years or more. If a coin of 40 years of age had poor chances of survival, where did the people get "mites" in the period towards the end of the procuratorial regime? This was a long time after the incident described in Mark 12:41-44.

Thoughts of this kind lead invariably to the question: What was it actually that prevented the procurators from minting "mites" also, since they already had minted the larger coin type? I certainly do not think the coins of defunct kings, minted 30-70 years before. The only reason I could think of is that such coins were actually minted during the period of the procurators, because the need for them was very urgent. What makes our problem is the obscurity about their identity. Accordingly, the topic of your article should be to find, not the coins left over for the widow from old times, but which coin types were possibly provided for her by the mints existing in the widow's own time. I should be happy to receive a reply from you regarding the above.

— WOLF WIRGIN
A.N.A. No. 18024
P. O. Box 97
Bronxville, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Wirgin:

I was very happy to receive your letter of the 17th, and it is a privilege for me to reply.

The original draft of my article was presented before San Bernardino and Orange County coin clubs at the Christmas season in 1954. The purpose of the article was to emphasize the possibilities in the area designated commonly by "widow's mite." When your excellent article appeared a few months later I did not revise my article but appended notes to it, drawing the interested reader's attention to your paper in the same area of interest. I quite agree with you that the interest in Biblical numismatics has drawn forth general articles but I feel that the need is for the specialized investigation of the particular coins.

In direct reply to your propositions:

1. Jewish coins of King Alexander: I have to date accepted the usual attribution of the anchor wheel varieties to the Maccabean. The interesting similarity to the Etruscan bronze to which you draw attention I had not previously noticed. The adoption of such a device is very much in character with the Alexander who was the first Maccabean to call himself king, to reject the Pharisees, adopt the Sadducees and the Greco-Roman name of Alexander Jannaeus. However, I am open minded on this issue and await any finds which might add to our present fragmentary knowledge of this issue. My own convictions rest on historical probability which is not so sure as archaeological fact.

2. Identification of the "widow's mite": You are correct in saying that my paper endeavored to identify a coin "left over" from old times. While this remains the stronger possibility in my thinking, the lepton not being a necessity if the supply of quadrans were ample. I am open to the attractive possibility of a lengthy issue and reissue of the anchor wheel lepton or imitation. Relative to this possibility is A. Kindler's "The Jaffa Hoard of Alexander Jannaeus" published by the Israel Numismatic Society in 1954. I was pleased to note that both of our papers rejected the quadrans of the procurators as "mites."

In any problem such as the two above it is my belief that there are three approaches to the correct conclusion and the truth lies at their intersection. First and least reliable is the numismatic approach which deals with superficial similarities; second, the historical which takes into account historical fact and human nature; finally and almost conclusively, the archaeological dig which establishes levels and dates. My own investigations must of necessity be in the first two classes. I am indebted to others for any help in the last class. For this reason I am very moderate in my decisions which does not mean I do not value new contributions and ideas. I am always interested and stimulated by your thought-provoking articles in the field of Jewish-Biblical numismatics.

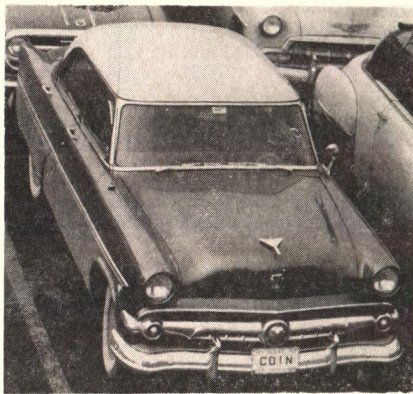

In closing I wish to thank you for your letter and your interest in my modest article.

Financial Arrangements of the United Arab States

Six laws have been promulgated in Damascus by the Supreme Council of the Federated Arab States of Yemen and the United Arab republic, regulating financial and economic relations within the federation. When established, the Central Bank of the United Arab republic will set up in Yemen a central monetary organization with broad powers over monetary, economic, commercial, and social affairs in Yemen. The organization will also issue at an appropriate date a new Yemenite currency to be called the Yemenite rial whose official rate will be fixed at par with the existing Maria Theresa rial. The organization may also issue paper currency, the Yemenite pound, which will be at par with the Egyptian pound. The currency cover for these issues will consist mainly of treasury bills of the United Arab republic.

INCIDENT IN THE LIFE OF FARRAN ZERBE

By

H. A. BRAND, A.N.A. No. 1536

Paper presented to the 1957 A.N.A. convention

YOU can eat your cake and have it too.

I think the best example of this old reverse cliché is evidenced in the life of Farran Zerbe. His collection makes up the important part of the exhibit in the Chase National Bank, New York. After spending the best part of his life in exhibiting this collection in banks throughout the country and at expositions, he sold it to the Chase National Bank, was appointed the curator and was given the opportunity of adding to the collection or taking any part of it on loan for any exhibits at any meetings or shows. Farran Zerbe was eating his cake and was having it too.

It was he who made me a member of the American Numismatic Association, one day when he was exhibiting in Cincinnati at the old Union Trust Company Bank at Fourth & Walnut. At that time he wanted me to act as his advance agent in lining up banks for future shows. He generally exhibited at banks for a week, drew a lot of newspaper publicity, brought many people in the bank who opened accounts, made loans and in general were becoming acquainted with the services the bank offered. Of course he had the opportunity, too, of buying many hoards of coins brought to him for appraisal. I remember he bought of me a paper bill of one of the Georgia banks, printed on tissue paper and although I have had thousands of pieces of paper money pass through my hands since that time and have seen many collections and dealers' stocks, I have never seen this bill again. Farran Zerbe could find them. Later he traded with me for possibly the only note of its kind; a bill on the Cherokee Indian Nation. But he did help, too, in securing for me specimens of Ohio paper money. I believe my collection of Ohio paper was the largest in existence at the time I sold it, when moving to Florida. It consisted of over 1800 different pieces of paper money which had a circulation in Ohio.

While Zerbe was exhibiting in Denver, Colo. at one of the banks, the banker from another bank in the city visited him and asked him if he would be interested in buying the old gold pieces that had been issued by the Mormons, the United States Assay Office and other concerns. Of course Zerbe was interested and an appointment was made after banking hours. Zerbe expected to find a half dozen or so and was delightfully shocked when the banker brought into view a fairly large canvas bag and poured several hundred pioneer gold pieces on the desk. There were Mormons, Cincinnati Mining & Trading Company pieces, 25 or more slugs and a variety of almost all of the various issues. While Zerbe's eyes were feasting on all of these and while he was pondering about raising the money to buy the lot, the banker brought out a small cardboard box filled with the 25¢, 50¢ and $1.00 California gold pieces. The banker wanted to know if Zerbe was interested in buying the lot and upon being assured that he was, depending on the price, the banker told the story of the hoard. "Father, who had the bank before my brother and I, took these in at a discount, but he never distributed them again. This was his collection. I believe they are worth face value today and perhaps more, but if you will buy them at face, you can have the premium as your profit. I am sure my brother will agree as we have spoken often about father's hoard of odd gold pieces and have carried it on the books at face. We have both wished to dispose of it and this is the first opportunity I have had. I'll talk it over with my brother, to let him know what we are doing; you see, while I take care of the bank, he looks after the property that father left. I'll see him tonight as he is coming over to dinner and I'll let you know in the morning. Or better, drop in after banking hours, after you have finished with your show."

Every piece Zerbe had looked at was worth more than double face. The assortment contained almost all of the varieties of Clark Gruber & Co., it was rich with desirable Mormon issues. The round $50.00 gold pieces were in much better condition than he had seen for some time. It was a desirable lot and he thought of wiring for financial aid, but believing that he could make a local loan with the bank in which his collection was displayed, he waited until the next day and as soon as the bank was closed he was calling on the banker with the hoard.

The sack of gold was not on the desk. The cardboard box of tiny gold pieces was not in sight.

"Sit down, Mr. Zerbe, I have something to tell you. My brother and his family were at the house for dinner last night and mother was there. I spoke to my brother about father's hoard of gold coins and he agreed with me that it was all right to turn them over to you, but mother heard us talking and wanted to know what we were talking about. When we told her, she said she often wondered what had become of those odd gold pieces of father's. 'When he took in an odd piece, he would bring it home and show it to me,' she said. 'You must have quite a number of them.' We told her we had a small sack full. 'Well, if you boys do not mind, I'll tell you what I would like to do with that gold of father's. I want you all at my home on my next birthday. I am going to have a dinner for all my children and all my grandchildren. I have a large silver punch bowl, but instead of celebrating my birthday with a drink or two of punch, I would like to fill up the bowl with father's odd gold pieces and then have you all march around the table and help yourselves to these gold pieces in memory of your father and grandfather.' Mr. Zerbe, I looked over to my brother and he nodded, so we have agreed to save father's gold for mother's birthday party. I am sorry, Mr. Zerbe, but father had been so good to all of us and mother is so good to us now, that we just could not offer any objection."

Farran Zerbe purchased The Numismatist from the estate of Doctor Heath. He sold the magazine to the American Numismatic Association. Zerbe became president of the A.N.A. and curator of the coin and paper money collection of the Chase National Bank. His collection was my ideal of numismatics. Types, curious pieces, historical personages and items, coins from every country and possibly the largest paper money collection in existence. He contributed much to the science of numismatics and brought in many new members. It was always a pleasure to be in his company.

Book Review

"German Talers 1700-1800" by John S. Davenport, published in Galesburg, Ill., 1958, illus., 416 pages, $7.50.

The long awaited book on the German talers of the eighteenth century by Dr. Davenport lists 994 items. (The numeration, running from 1901 to 2915, is not quite fully occupied.) In addition to the actual listings of the coins themselves, there is much supplemental material which enhances the value of the work considerably: a sketch map on the flyleaf, a preface with a discussion of the weight aspects of the talers struck during the period, historical introductions on each of the issuing authorities, translations of the Latin and German inscriptions, an explanation of the initials of the mintmasters, etc., a list of pieces which the author considers pseudo talers for various reasons, and finally a valuable bibliography with a regional arrangement. Nearly all of the pieces listed are illustrated by photographic reproduction. A loose leaf is included which lists present market evaluations.

Catalogs of German talers have traditionally arranged the issuing authorities by rank, starting with the emperors, kings, etc. Dr. Davenport has broken with this tradition and has arranged the issuing authorities merely by alphabet. This arrangement not only complicates a comparison with the older works, but forgoes the value of juxtaposing the strikings of similar issuing authorities, such as cities, kingdoms, etc. Another arbitrary arrangement in the present volume has to do with time. A much more logical terminal date, historically, would have been the cessation of the Holy Roman Empire in 1806. The talers of the Holy Roman Empire, as well as those of such issuing localities as Salzburg, are not included in this volume, although the imperial cities subordinate to the Empire are included. The real separation of Austria from the other German states does not take place until 1806, so it is difficult to understand why the issues of the Empire are not listed in the present volume. The author has also included silver coins larger than taler size, especially two-taler pieces.

In perusing the list of market evaluations, very wisely not included in the text but rather on a separate sheet, we are struck with the very considerable market value of the pieces in question. Of the 994 pieces listed on the sheet, only 239 are given valuations under $10. Actually, many of the German talers of the eighteenth century are quite scarce, especially those struck before the end of the Seven Years War in 1763. The reason for this fact doubtless lies in the circumstance that Germany was flooded in the early part of the century, especially during the period ca. 1710-1740, by French ecus. Thus, the talers struck during this period were often in the nature of medals rather than coins intended primarily for circulation (cf. Numismatist of May, 1953, p. 468) and were therefore struck in rather small quantities in many instances. Dr. Davenport has even been able to give statistical notes on the strikings of a few pieces.

This very nature of so many German talers brings up a further problem: The boundary line between medals having the size and weight of talers and those struck for actual circulation is often a very hazy one. For this reason, there may be much dispute on the pieces listed in the section on pseudo talers (Appendix C), as well as those included in the main body of the listings.

One feature that could have enhanced the scientific value of the work very considerably without taking up any appreciable space would have been the inclusion of the weights. These weights could have been given as those of the specimens illustrated, the normal weights defined by the minting laws, or both. Since the diameter and fineness of the pieces listed vary considerably, the listing of the weights, even if not in every instance, would have been very helpful in enabling the reader to visualize their actual appearance. (cf. Numismatist of January, 1956, pp. 31-32).

The standard type of German taler struck in the eighteenth century, a period when absolutism was just beginning to dissolve in Europe, consists of a portrait of the ruling prince on the obverse and his arms on the reverse. There are, however, many exceptions to this type, especially in the case of cities and ecclesiastical authorities. According to the tabulations of this reviewer, 57 of the pieces show views of cities and localities, 70 show saints (including the Holy Virgin) and 40 show mining scenes. Furthermore, there is a fair number of pieces on the Protestant Reformation, the bicentennial of which occurred in 1717. Unlike some other Continental powers, especially Spain, Portugal, England and Holland, Germany was not concerned very much at this time with overseas colonization and trade, perhaps because of the weakening of its political and economic structure still resultant from the Thirty Years War (1618-1648). In any event, we find only one piece that was obviously meant for overseas trade (No. 2591) and that is a scarce one. It is a Prussian piece showing a wild man and a Chinaman supporting a coat of arms with a ship on it. Because of the fact that many German talers of the eighteenth century have considerable historical and cultural interest, Dr. Davenport's recent book should prove interesting to many readers who are not specifically engaged in coin collecting.

The great political disunity of Germany in the eighteenth century is strikingly demonstrated by the fact that Dr. Davenport lists 116 issuing authorities for the talers under consideration. Incidentally, if one wishes to consult a fine colored map of Germany in the eighteenth century, he may refer to Westermann's Atlas zur Weltgeschichte, pp. 122-123. This reasonably priced atlas, published in 1956, is a masterpiece of scholarship and printing; it belongs in every numismatic reference library.

In using a book confined to talers, the inexperienced collector is tempted, unfortunately, to specialize in a denomination rather than a topic, era or locality. There are many interesting and aesthetically gratifying German silver coins struck during the eighteenth century in the form of florins (guldens, $\frac{1}{2}$ talers), half-florins and even 20 kreuzer pieces. Furthermore, such pieces often have the considerable advantage of being much less expensive than the talers. However, even to the intelligent collector who does not wish to confine his acquisitions merely to coins of taler size, Dr. Davenport's book will prove to be a valuable guide, for the talers are often (but not always) prototypes for coins of smaller denominations.

In comparing the present volume with its predecessors, such as Madai, we must note that it has the considerable advantage of being nearly fully illustrated. Despite some of its minor imperfections, German Talers 1700-1800 is, on the whole, a very distinguished undertaking in numismatic scholarship. It will doubtless make its way not only in this country, but even in the lands that struck the pieces it describes.

Withdrawal of Spanish Currency From Morocco — The conversion into Moroccan currency of Spanish currency circulating in the former Zone of the Spanish Protectorate of Morocco was effected during the week of February 9-16, 1958, at the rate of one peseta for 10 Moroccan francs. At the same time, the peseta ceased to be legal tender in the former Northern Zone of Morocco, and higher wage and salary rates were fixed in the North to bring them into line with those in the South. — Marchés Tropicaux du Monde, Paris, France, February 15, 1958; Spanish Economic News Service, Madrid, Spain, February 18, 1958; International Financial News Survey, March 14, 1958.

NOTES FROM YOUR LIBRARIAN

By

JOHN J. GABARRON

Dwight P. Spencer's donations have been shelved. We received many new and numerous duplicates. All are listed below. Again I wish to thank all who have donated books and material to the library. We have many interesting reprints for sale. You will find them listed on the back cover of your library catalog. I get many calls for back issues of The Numismatist, so would appreciate donations of them. Please read instructions on front and back catalog covers before ordering library books; also include your A.N.A. number.

A.N.A.'S PEOPLE-TO-PEOPLE PROJECT

Additional contributions are urgently needed for the A.N.A. to reach its goal to bring to this country a prominent numismatist from an "Iron Curtain" country to its annual convention in Los Angeles this August. In this promotion of international friendship and understanding the Association is confident that from its 14,000 members at least 100 individuals, clubs and dealers, who have not already done so, will send in checks of $5 or more. Why wait, do it now! Your coöperation will be greatly appreciated. Checks should be made payable to the American Numismatic Association and mailed to Vernon L. Brown, c/o Chase Manhattan Bank Money Museum, 1254 Avenue of the Americas, New York 20, N. Y.

The following clubs have sent in donations since the last published report:

Old Fort Coin Club, Fort Wayne, Ind.
South Bend (Ind.) Coin Club
Fort Worth (Texas) Coin Club
Cedar Rapids (Iowa) Coin Club
Bronx (N.Y.) Coin Club
Triple Cities Coin Club, Endicott, N. Y.
Jacksonville, (Fla.) Coin Club
Evansville (Ind.) Coin Club
Billings (Mont.) Coin Club
Asheville (N. C.) Coin Club
Royal Oak (Mich.) Coin Club
Heart of America Numismatic Assn., Kansas City, Mo.
Chicago, (Ill.) Coin Club — Second donation
Arkansas Numismatic Society, Little Rock
East Los Angeles (Calif.) Coin Club
Orange County Coin Club, Brea, Calif.

Several of the clubs have used the "hat passing" technique to collect their donations. The latest to use this method are the Billings (Montana) Coin Club, the Heart of America Numismatic Association, Kansas City, Mo., and the Chicago, (Ill.) Coin Club. Hats off to the Chicago group as it sent in the regular $5.00 donation and by passing the hat at a subsequent meeting collected an additional $30.00.

In addition to the clubs, many individuals have sent in contributions ranging from $1 to $25. The dealers who have so far supported the A.N.A. in this project are: James, Inc., Edward Gans, Louis Werner, Hans Schulman, the Capitol Coin Co. and Stack's.

All those who have contributed to this fund believe that it is a splendid idea and the Association needs your help in putting this campaign over the top. Through coin collecting we have a better understanding of people in foreign countries. — VERNON L. BROWN

Obituary

HARRY MOSES, A.N.A. NO. 6872

Harry Moses, 72, retired chief clerk of the U. S. district attorney's office in Atlanta, died March 30 at his home, 1050 Ponce de Leon Ave., N. E., Atlanta, Ga., after a short illness. He served under five district attorneys during his 35-year tenure before his retirement in October, 1955. He kept records of cases in the federal courts of the Northern District of Georgia. Mr. Moses was born in Oxford, Ala., and came to Atlanta in 1915 after spending his boyhood in Rome, Ga. He was a member of The Temple. An Atlanta Coin Club member, No. 10, he joined the American Numismatic Association in 1938, assigned No. 6872.

Funeral services were held April 1 at Spring Hill, Atlanta, with Rabbi Jacob Rothchild officiating. Surviving are his sisters, Miss Lucile Mucie Moses and Mrs. Aaron M. Mayer, both of Atlanta.—M.C.M.

U. S. TWO CENT PIECES: TABLE OF RARITY AND VALUES

By

S. W. FREEMAN, A.N.A. No. 3846

The numbers shown correspond to the numbers used in the series of articles appearing in the 1954 and 1957 volumes of The Numismatist. The R numbers indicate the degree of rarity from 0 to 5, there being only one coin so far encountered that deserves a rating higher than 5, namely 1864 Small Motto in proof with regular reverse, which is probably R-7. The basal value is the estimated value of the coin in the lowest identifiable condition. This would be condition 1 while a coin in absolute mint state would be condition 70, valued at 70 times basal.

It seems noteworthy to say that 14 coins are required to complete the major varieties of two cent pieces, namely:

1864, three coins. Var. 1 — Small Motto. Var. 2 — Large Motto with small date or closed 6. Var. 3 — Large Motto with large date or open 6.

1865, two coins. Var. 1 — Right top of 5 pointed and curved up.
Var. 2 — Top of 5 relatively straight.

1866 through 1872, one coin each.

1873, two coins. Var. 1 — Open 3. Var. 2 — Closed 3.

Since the initial article appeared in June, 1954 the prices realized at auction and reported prices paid in private sales are showing a decided upward trend. Gem uncirculated and proof, uncleaned, specimens, seem to be in limited supply, even the common dates. Brilliant proofs of 1864 L. M. are extremely hard to find and coins of 1865 in similar condition are almost as scarce.

Some early strikes of the first five years have a prooflike surface, and are easily confused with proofs, but a close examination will prove them to be from regular dies. Almost all actual proofs have a flat edge, are well centered and have sharp raised rims.

— The Editor

The Santa Barbara Coin Club heard a talk on U. S. patterns and "Money Talks," by Abe Kosoff, guest speaker at the March 17th meeting. Kosoff highlighted his speech with a display of very rare U. S. patterns. Officers elected for the coming fiscal year were William Craig, president; Ben Romer, vice president; A. R. Edson, treasurer; and Gwen Sentis, secretary. Meetings are the third Monday of every month.

Regina Coin Club held its March meeting in C.K.C.K. Studios with 38 members and guests present. Four members gave short talks on cleaning coins describing the methods used and which they found most satisfactory.

At the first March meeting of the Baltimore Coin Club homage was paid to Philip G. Straus, who passed away Feb. 27. One of our more active members, he had an extensive U. S. collection and much foreign gold in addition to stamp and historical document collections. He was also responsible for having procured many items for the Eliasberg collection. Sixty attended the twenty-third annual banquet. Malanowski's exhibit which won first prize in its class at Charlotte MANA Convention was shown. Mr. and Mrs. Plummer Wiley showed color slides from pictures taken in Monument Valley.

The Convair Coin Club celebrated its sixth anniversary March 18 at San Diego Hearing Aid Society Bldg., San Diego, Calif., with a pot luck dinner. Movies were shown by Louis Fisher. Exhibits were by Roy Toy, Douglas Decker and C. W. Heaton.

On March 21 the Rochester Junior Numismatic Association celebrated its tenth anniversary with Edward Meinhart Appreciation Night. The club was the second of its kind in the United States and the first east of the Mississippi and only for teenage boys. At this meeting we honored Edward Meinhart, who formed the club and has been the substantial supporter and advisor ever since. He was presented a traveling case. Mrs. Meinhart was on hand to help celebrate this evening with her husband. Other members of the Rochester Numismatic Association were present.

The March 24th meeting of the Camden County Coin Club was held at the regular meeting place. Guests were all from the Upper Darby Women's Coin Club. The entertaining feature of the evening was a quiz program on United States coins, conducted by Sol Solomon. Display winner of the evening was R. Magowan for an uncirculated set of Washington quarters and a Panama commemorative set.

March is election time at the Bakersfield Coin Club. New officers are: President Warren Pattison, Jr., Vice President Paul Stevenson, Secretary Louann E. Graham, Treasurer Michel I. Shaffer, Librarian Vernon O. Hulsey. The members enjoyed a talk by S. J. Kabealo on proof coins. His speech was supported by a complete type set of United States proof coins. Bruce Crawford exhibited a complete set of Mexican gold pieces and Paul Stevenson 1947 silver cent, 1944-S flag pole nickel, 1951-D rolled edge quarter.

By way of observing the twenty-fifth anniversary of the bank holiday in March, 1933, President Vernon L. Brown displayed a part of his collection of emergency currencies of the depression period at the March 14 meeting of the New York Numismatic Club. Included were representative notes of the principal types issued when many communities were deprived of normal banking facilities. Among the earliest scrip was that of the Chamber of Commerce of Tenino, Wash., which issued both paper and wooden money in December, 1931. Other emergency currencies were circulated by cities, counties, organizations of unemployed, hotels, colleges, trade associations, merchants and industrial and manufacturing concerns. It was during this era that the "wooden nickel" made its appearance, as well as scrip printed on buckskin, sheepskin and fishskin. An original form of currency was the self-liquidating stamp certificate, issued by some municipalities and chambers of commerce. These necessitated the affixing of an adhesive stamp, ranging from 1/2c to 3c face value, on the back each time it changed hands. When all the stamps had been attached, the certificate was redeemed by the issuer, since it had liquidated itself.

S. J. Kabealo gave a talk on proof coinage before the Southern Hub Coin Club. He stated that certain coins struck before 1817 were struck with great care so as to show how well the design worked. After 1817 complete sets of these coins were struck as presents for visiting dignitaries. These were called specimen coins. After 1858 these coins were sold to the public and were called proof sets. Paul Weiger showed a very nice collection of Civil War Tokens, Confederate money, occupation money, rolled coins, and encased postage stamps. Other exhibitors were Hunter Hilton, James Miladin and George Fulton.

The March 22nd meeting of Toronto Coin Club attracted sixty members and guests. John J. Pittman was speaker; he recalled old times with the club and gave an excellent talk on cleaning coins; also displayed a unique folder of proof nickel coins of the world. He then spoke of the Boer coinage of South Africa and at conclusion showed the rare 1892 South African pond with the one shaft ox wagon.

Pacific Coast Numismatic Society's March meeting featured medieval coins. Prof. Carlo M. Cipolla, a young visiting professor in the Department of Economics at the University of California, was the guest speaker. He gave a very interesting talk on coins of the medieval period, showing the relation of the economics of that period with the quality of its coinage, from pennies of nearly pure silver to the very small coins of debased metal. His presentation was enjoyed by all. This Society went on record as approving Senate Bill 3299 for the minting of a commemorative half dollar in celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt's birth. The Secretary was instructed to write the congressmen urging immediate action. Among the displays were a 1916 Liberty standing quarter with "undressed bust" and a Monroe Doctrine half dollar with the continents on the reverse in the form of nude women, owned by Leslie Lodge, which he called his "medium evil coins." Other coins displayed were Roman, medieval, Renaissance and Byzantine.

William Fox Steinberg was the guest speaker at the fourth annual banquet of the St. Petersburg Coin Club. His speech gave zest to the 77th meeting which was held at the Pennsylvania Hotel, St. Petersburg, Florida. One hundred members and winter guests escaping the winter ice and snow were presided over by President Grover C. Criswell, Jr., whose high bid of $30 won him life membership number No. 1 at auction. In addition five life memberships were subscribed to at $25 each. Ten applications were taken for new memberships. Music for the occasion was furnished by Marion Huff and his wife Martha. Past President Alfred Bannister displayed tetradrachms from ancient Greece, Rome and Egypt, encased postage stamp, perforated postage and fractional currency were displayed by Caryl William Carper, rare gold coins were displayed by Steinberg.

Three exhibit winners at the Numismatic Association of Southern California convention recently were members of the Bay Cities Coin Club, according to Al Moore, club secretary. At the club's meeting of March 27, A.N.A. slides on "Private Issues of Gold Coins" were warmly greeted as was the display of gambling hall tokens by Max Wedertz.

"Other Hobbies Night" was the feature of the February 20 meeting of the San Bernardino County Coin Club. Fred Coops showed how he drilled holes in coins for collectors! Other collectibles seem to be bottle caps (John Barnes), stamps (Gil Schmidtman, Mary Moynahan, Bland Hayden, Mrs. Eastman), painting (Mrs. Illes), copperfoil work (Irene Harley) campaign badges and buttons (Gene Dietrich), old newspapers (Pres. Lagis). A collection he used in teaching was shown by Bryan Burke. Two "rock hounds" are Dewey Eastman and L. L. Brown. At the March 20 gathering, slides on medieval coins were shown and a collection of these coins was exhibited by L. L. Brown. Just 30 days late for the "other hobby night," John Lenker brought his five-foot long South American boa constrictor and explained how harmless and friendly his pet is.

A record-breaking 203 attended the March 26 meeting of the Orange County Coin Club when a film on the U. S. Secret Service was shown. One of the guests was Willard Long of Pomona, Calif., a retired U. S. Treasury agent, who spoke briefly on his service in the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Among the exhibits were a nearly complete type set of U. S. gold coins together with a variety of pioneer and California gold. Several members showed altered dates and other fake coins that occasionally cause the collector trouble. Adopted was a resolution backing the proposal to strike a Theodore Roosevelt half dollar.

Exhibits at the March 18 Philadelphia Coin Club meeting were by A. Leatherman showing a complete set of cents and a 1958 Canadian dollar; Mr. Burdord displayed two one dollar scrip notes of San Francisco Calif. and Harrisburg, Pa. Exhibit award medal was won by Leatherman. Program chairman Hance Jaquett conducted a numismatic quiz won by Sebring.

May 1958

Dear Friend:

Please do not be confused: I am in no manner associated with the B. MAX MEHL Co. of Costa Mesa, Calif. I am engaged in my own numismatic business here in Fort Worth, Texas, where I have for so many year been associated with the late eminent Numismatic dealer, B. Max Mehl.

In a nice purchase I recently made, I am able to offer you a real rarity. It is no less than a of the rare Silver Certificate, $1.00, 1928-D. Fr. 1404. Perfect, unc. This is a far scarcer item than its quoted price would signify, and in complete sheet is seldom offered. My price, $750.00

A L S O

RECONSTRUCTED SHEET OF FOUR

$10.00 Legal Tender, 1901 Notes. Lyons and Roberts. Uncirculated. Price, $200.00

AND

Hawaii Overprint $1.00 Silver Certificate, 1935-A. FR 2126. Crisp uncirculated. Special, only $4.35. (Postage and ins. extra)

The above offerings are just to "whet your appetite." Will have more for you next month.

PLEASE REMEMBER: I am anxious to serve you, either buying or selling. Write me, and I assure you of prompt, courteous attention.

Sincerely,

M. FERGUSON

Let's Take A Deep Breath And A Three Month Rest

This is the last offering until September of items from the extensive Philpott collection of paper currency

With this May offering, which finishes off my Silver Certificates, I propose to suspend further listings for three months. In September my monthly offerings will be resumed, beginning with the much-in-demand Coin Notes—including every Friedberg number, $1 to $100, each (except two) uncirculated and superb. Eager letters from all over indicate this series is universally being sought.

For six months now my Legal Tenders and Silver Certificates have been distributed to discriminating collectors and several dealers. Usually a monthly offering has been sold before the ink of the ad is hardly dry. This May list promises to go as swiftly as the others. All items remaining of the first five offerings (December, January, February, March and April), numbering 206 lots, are a scattering few, maybe 18 or 20, generally where I had duplicates from breaking up cut sheets.

On this point I am proud: in this large number of notes, distributed to scores of collectors—many discerning students of paper currency—not one note has been returned as unsatisfactory. Contrarily, several gladdened purchasers have written to tell of their pleasure in securing such splendid specimens.

But (there is always a but) I am a bit sad on two points: parting with notes I have been happy to own these many years; and disappointing many eager ones whose checks arrived too late. Here are the last of my Silvers—many beauties and rarities among them. Check them carefully, please.

274. $5, Fr. 282, in this perfect state, in two years will bring double	80.00

That's finis for the Silver Certificates. As a vast majority of these items are "singles," alertness in sending checks is imperative. It will please me to feel these perfect notes are helping fill important gaps in the better collections of the country.

Suggest first, second and even third choices be indicated. To save bookkeeping and refund check writing, also suggest separate check for each note.

Plan to see everybody at the Los Angeles ANA Convention in August. Will bring some pieces to exhibit, and maybe a few to sell.

U. S. PROOF COINS OF DISTINCTION

We have purchased an accumulation of proof coins which we are offering below. On a few items, we have only three or four; others, as many as twelve. However, these will go fast at these prices, so please make a second choice if possible. Three day return privilege, check or money order with your order. We try to ship the coins the same day your remittance is received. Any over payment or refund will go out within twenty-four hours. Please include 50¢ additional on orders under $10.00! The following is for true coin collectors. All proofs, hairlines marked (HL), scratches, (SCR); if unmarked, brother, they are gems!

Announcement

"OLD COLONY COIN AUCTIONS"

We have been awarded the New England Numismatic Association Auction to be held in Worcester, Massachusetts on October 11th and 12th, 1958. This is New England's most important convention and sale each year.

Our organization is prepared to sell your coins at auction, and can offer you the following information:

1. We are all members of the Professional Numismatists Guild.
2. Members of the International Association of Professional Numismatists.
3. Material in our auction will be triple checked as to condition by three different cataloguers, the first time in our knowledge this has ever been done.

"Full information on request."

4. Our rates are as follows:

20% on lots under $10.00

15% on lots $10.00 to $50.00

10% on lots over $50.00

5. Satisfactory advance if desired.

COINS SOLICITED

Please send postcard to insure receiving our catalogues as issued.

JOHNSON'S APPROVAL SHIPMENTS

Hundreds of satisfied customers have found "Johnson's Approval Shipments" the easy, convenient way to build up their coin collections.

If you can make monthly payments of $10.00 or more, then we are in business. Just send me a list of the coins you need in any series: Half Cents to Gold coins, Paper Money, Foreign Silver Dollars, etc. Or a list of the coins you now have, if more convenient.

On receiving your list, I will send different coins on approval. You then return any you do not want to keep, and make payments of $10.00 or more a month on coins retained. As you make payments, I will send more coins.

•

You will find that "Johnson's Approval Shipments" bring you the best coin values you can get.

If you have no special series in mind, why not start on a TYPE SET of Commemorative Half Dollars? This is a beautiful collection, of interesting Half Dollars depicting important historical events. Due to increasing scarcity, these coins are going up in value all the time, and are a good investment in addition to being the most popular series in U. S. coins. I would like to send an album with your first shipment, so you can keep the coins protected from handling and in neat order.

Send me your list now, and your first approval shipment will come by return mail. Join the hundreds of collectors who are building up their collections with "Johnson's Approval Shipments."

I WANT TO BUY — Commemorative Half Dollars and other nice coins or collections. I buy and sell on close margin, and you are assured of a fair deal whether buying or selling. Send me the coins you want to sell, by registered mail or railway express. I will look them over and send you my best offer and check, then will hold coins for your reply. If no deal, I will return coins and no harm done.

OUR PAYMENT PLAN FOR DOLLARS, ETC.

This plan will also hold for larger and more expensive lots or single coins of your needs. For example, you desire 20 different dates of Dollars from SPECIAL, but your budget will not stretch quite as far as that at one time. It's simple; just mail us your check or M.O. for 25% of the total order to the nearest 25c. In this example, only $12.50 will do the job. Upon receipt of this, we will ship you 5 dollars from your total list (dates of our choice) in conditions you desire from your listed order. We will then place the balance aside for you and you may send remittances on balance as your budget will permit. We shall ship the approximate number of coins that each remittance will cover as they are received. You may have up to 6 months to pick up those laid away for you. Prices cannot be guaranteed after this period. In this way you may take advantage of specials or quantity discount lots, and still pay for them over a period of time as your budget will permit. Please add 25c postage and handling to each remittance if under $25.00. How about it? Will you allow us to add your name to the ever increasing list of our PAYMENT PLAN purchasers? We certainly do hope that we may serve you in the very near future. We also ship on approval and will be happy to hear from you on your special needs. Cases, sets or singles, supplies, etc., may be purchased on the above plan. Let us hear from you.

SPRING BARGAIN SALE

Coin business booming; orders 10% ahead of last year. New members joining A.N.A. in record numbers. No time to write of spring auction (will have a dandy later). At present we offer choice items reasonably priced, plus our 1958 Deluxe pocket price list, 25¢ (many say the best quarter they ever spent); or free with any order.

Why Gamble?

When you are disposing of your collection . . . it just doesn't pay to take a chance. Considering the time and effort you have expended in gathering your coins . . . the value of those coins today . . . and the amounts that can be realized from your collection if properly handled . . . it's wise to consider using one of America's oldest and largest coin dealers to handle the sale of your coins.

Nowhere can you avail yourself of such a multiplicity of numismatic services . . . nowhere will you receive equal care and consideration . . . nowhere will you receive equally consistent high prices for your collection.

Now . . . while the coin market is at a peak . . . call on STACK'S to help in the profitable disposition of your coins.

Announcement

Mr. Michael Kolman, long known nationally as an authority and dealer in Numismatics, announces the opening of a branch store of the FEDERAL COIN EXCHANGE on or about April 15, 1958.

The new store will be located in "The Arcade," in the heart of downtown Cleveland.

In conjunction with the expansion of the facilities of the Federal Coin Exchange, a new associate, Mr. Edward A. Kolman will, with a capable staff, administer the business at its new branch location.

Mr. Michael Kolman, who has conducted his business since 1942 on a highly personal basis, feels that the opening of a new downtown store will enable his company greatly to expand its services and reach a larger field in the interests of coin collecting. Among his many contributions to Numismatics has been his recent work in the development of standards in the collecting of Mint Errors.

The policy of integrity and highly personalized service, which has been the guide of the Federal Coin Exchange since its beginning, will be continued.

"CHIN WHISKER" BUFFALO NICKELS

FOURTEEN YEARS AGO, in The Numismatist of March, 1944, Vol. LVII, No. 3, page 221, was published an article by me describing discovery of certain markings on the obverse of Buffalo Nickels, under (I quote) "the chin and along the throat of the Indian head . . . I struck upon the idea of placing a mirror against the face of the coin, and to my surprise by this reversal of the marks I plainly found appearing several letters of the word PLURIBUS."

During those years, in searching through approximately one-half million Nickels, I found less than two dozen pieces of this "Chin Whisker" type Buffalo Nickel.

I offer these pieces as described, some being quite scarce dates in their own right.

1913-S Type I VG Sharp "U" (from UNUM) plus "LU" under chin.....	$ 10.00
1913-S Type II VF (weak strike, or would be XF) "UR" under chin	50.00

UNITED STATES SILVER DOLLARS — ALL UNCIRCULATED

These are today's best buys when all other coins are very high in price. Many are far older and far rarer than Lincoln Cents, but still selling Unc. for double face. What Lincoln Cents can you buy for double face, or any other coin for that matter. Better buy while the price is still low. These have light mars, as all dollars seem to, but are all carefully selected copies. Maybe a few Cents higher, but worth it.

STATEHOOD ANNIVERSARY

Fiftieth Anniversary of Oklahoma Statehood Commemorative Medal, size 16 — slightly larger than a Half Dollar. The beautiful State Seal covers one side, and the reverse depicts the State Capitol Building in center; beneath are the essential dates, November 16, 1907, to November 16, 1957. Border has FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY / OKLAHOMA THE 46th STATE encircling the design.

This is a beautiful medal — brass, with goldine finish, and has proved very popular, but most were sold in Oklahoma. We have a limited stock which we are offering to coin collectors for 50 cents each, three for $1.00, or a dozen for $3.00. Postpaid in United States.

Useful for cleaning all kinds of coins, but particularly adapted to cleaning coins of copper or nickel.

EASY TO USE AND ECONOMICAL!
FAST ACTION — IT ACTUALLY CLEANS IN SECONDS!

Does not add shine, but brings out natural color, including original brilliance if it is still there under tarnish or coating. Dull or dark uncirculated coins become brilliant uncirculated coins in seconds.

This result of years of experiment can be safely used on valuable coins to improve their appearance and increase their value.

On sale in many leading stores in 4-oz. bottles, with full directions, at $1.00.

If your dealer does not yet have it, send us $1.00 for 3-oz. bottle (enough to clean hundreds of coins) carefully packed and postpaid to any address in the United States or Canada.

MODERN FOREIGN COINS

More and more collectors are becoming "world minded" where there hobby is concerned.

Why not you? If you are bored, foreign coins can renew your interest. They cover such a broad field that you can collect what you want and spend what you want, ending up with something in which even a non-collector is interested.

You might even learn some history, geography, and a smattering of foreign languages.

If you are throwing some side-glances in the direction of MODERN FOREIGN COINS, you will have the best possible start with my current price lists. No charge, of course.

COLLECT FOREIGN COINS?

Save money! Be your own expert! Identify unclassified older Central European coins the natural way — by means of the words, names and symbols which told people who used these coins for money where they came from and what they were worth. GERMANIC COIN-AGES, the conveniently arranged 258 page encyclopedia, puts you in the shoes of the man in the Central European street — any man from 800 A.D. to 1871 — any street from Riga to Utrecht, and from Altona to Trieste. THE STANDARD CATALOGUE
OF UNITED STATES COINS
AGAIN AVAILABLE

18th EDITION

The first edition — conceived, edited, and published by Wayte Raymond over twenty-five years ago, set the standard for this, the 18th edition of which we are truly proud. The research, revision, and compilation, as well as careful editing has been done by John J. Ford, Jr. and Walter H. Breen assisted by five other well-known authorities on U. S. coins. This edition has been extended with many special features. CURRENT RETAIL VALUATIONS are given for all U. S. coins from 1616 to the present day.

THE STANDARD CATALOGUE IS NOT A "PRIMER" — IT IS MORE THAN A "GUIDE"
IT IS THE INCOMPARABLE CATALOGUE FOR THE ADVANCED COLLECTOR AND DEALER

Only in the Standard Catalogue is there a solution to the 1831, '36, 1840-49 and '52 Half Cent riddle, with each variety listed and priced. No other book lists all the designers of our U. S. coins; lists and prices Mint Strikes; gives the full story of the CSA coinages; reveals the number known of many varieties; tells the number of die varieties extant of various types; explodes the "Premium List" myth, or correctly evaluates U. S. Gold — in the grades actually available.
